A second citizenship and passport may give you improved visa-free travel, the right to live and work in other countries, better confidentiality and help with your tax planning. Many countries give you citizenship if you live there several years. A few legally waive prior residence if you make an appropriate investment. Grenada has the best of these programs. Grenada's economic citizenship program is simple to understand, predictable, efficient and legal. You and qualified family members get citizenship for life at a reasonable cost. Each person receives a passport that offers visa-free travel to about 100 countries. You can live and work in Grenada if you wish but you don't have to do so. Choose GRENADA is a "must-read" for anyone thinking about acquiring a second citizenship and passport.

Marshall J. Langer, author of The Tax Exile Report, is a Florida attorney based in London and the Caribbean. In addition to his private practice as an international tax attorney dealing primarily with migrating individuals, he is Grenada Trade and Investment Commissioner.

The passport program that this book is about has been suspended, so there isn't a whole lot of point to buying the book anymore. The Associated Press reported on October 12, 2001 that Grenada has suspended its program of allowing foreigners to buy passports, saying the practice was too risky after the terrorist attacks in the United States. ``Grenadian passports can end up in the wrong hands and be used for purposes other than for that which they were intended," Grenada Finance Minister Anthony Boatswain said. The program drew criticism even before the Sept. 11 attacks on New York and the Pentagon, with some saying the practice allowed criminals to effectively adopt new legal identities for a price. Grenada also recently was placed on an international blacklist of countries considered uncooperative in fighting money laundering. It was unclear whether Grenada's decision to suspend the economic citizenship program was related to the blacklisting. Officials say the suspension will cost the island between $1.8 million and $2.2 million yearly.

Marshall Langer is one of the great writers on tax havens and offshore living, but a book on a specific country is not a good place to start. Begin with a more general book, like "How to Legally Obtain a Second Citizenship and Passport -- and Why You Want To" by Adam Starchild, and then move on to Langer's country-specific book once you understand the basic concepts and issues involved with getting a second passport and citizenship.

Apparently the author has lived abroad too long. On page one he states: "A child born in the U.S., for example, is a U.S. citizen even if both of his parents are illegal immigrants." Not only is this untrue, a baby born to LEGAL immigrants isn't automatically granted citizenship. The rules changed long before the publishing of this book--the author should verify his facts. I can't help but wonder if the whole book isn't fully of erroneous information (I only read the first ten pages, which are available at the publishers site).

Excellent book for those who are tired of paying high taxes to the welfare nations like the US, Canada, Australia and EU. Details how to go about getting a second citizenship with an internationally recognized passport which enables you to renounce citizenship in your home country if you choose. Recommended for anyone who values their freedom and wants to hold on to the fruits of their labor and creativity.

I DO WISH TO BECOME A SECOND CLASS CITIZEN IN GRENADA, I THEREFORE WANT TO GET THE PASSPORT, WHAT DO I NEED TO DO IN OTHER TO GET ONE?, PLEASE YOURS OTMOST ASSITANCE IS NEEDED, I AM AN AFRICAN.
