I used the 2017 version last year as a sophomore when I was taking AP European History. I scored a 5 pretty easily. Start studying intensively around 2-3 weeks before the exam. Do both of the practice tests, read all ~300 pages of course review actively while taking notes, and do several drills for the SAQs, LEQ, and DBQ. The book is also great as a review for your class assessments, because it succinctly summarizes the entire course.

Great for both student and teacher use.

I did a ton of research before buying this book. I was contemplating between Princeton review of Barron's. I chose this one as recommended by an upperclassman that I know. Overall, I didn't use this book yet because it's still summer for me and I don't know if it'll help with the test or class of not yet so I'll update once I take the test and get my results back in July.
