Allah Al-Aleem (Who Is Your Rabb?)

Synopsis

The best gift we can give our children is the knowledge of Tawheed, to know their Creator. Knowing Allah by His names will help establish their roots, and help them to attach to Allah out of love of His perfection. May Allah help us to fulfill the responsibility of bringing up our children knowing Allah and worshipping Him alone.

Customer Reviews

The writer has mentioned a very important point in the introduction of the book, “Expose your children to more examples of Allah’s Names and Attributes.” This activates the pondering of both the child and the parent and this is her motive, which you can feel while reading the book. Umm Aadil

This is an excellent book that effectively introduces the youngest readers to the most complicated concepts of Allah’s Greatness, creation, time, and more. The illustrations beautifully complement the content in the same child-friendly, yet sophisticated and wise manner, as the content. A couple of other key features of this book are that the text is in English and Arabic, making a great tool for Arabic teaching, and also Qur’anic references are provided throughout the book so parents can further explore the concepts with children by reading the referenced verses.

I just love love love this book. It’s written simply so that young children can understand the concept that Allah knows everything. It repeats the phrase ‘Allah Al Aleem. He knows.’ throughout so that children will pick up on this and remember it. It is actually a bilingual book because it has the Arabic sentences on the same page.
